DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Salou et al., in view of Neibling et al.

Salou et al., discloses a bearing and interface assembly with features of the claimed invention including stationary flange and its corresponding openings for brake caliper support along rolling contact elements , plurality of sensor means arranged and placed on the stationary flange for measuring the braking force. The sensors are strain gauges that measure changes in length in the material of the flange in the flow force between the fastening openings. Due to his attention to the measurements, Salou does not show any form-locking connecting element. However, such arrangement in wheel bearing assemblies for proper contact of the flange to the wheel carrier, is notoriously known. For example, Neibling et al., is presented to show such assertion (see, for example, claim 13). Therefore, it would have been obvious for a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to modify Salou et al., to incorporate proper form-locking connecting arrangement in order to provide for more secure contact .

Art Unit: 2855

3. Claim 2, due to sliding layer, is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
